

Candlelight, summer night, power out, sat in the dark
I think of drinking, and I'm sinking, I am falling down
If I was aiming for sure then I sure missed the mark
And I miss you

See, I took a walk and I thought about holding your hand
How you swing your arm, keep me warm, I never planned
To get caught up in history I don't understand
And I miss you

*Even the rats are abandoning ship
I'm digging in hard but I'm losing my grip
There's a hundred little terrors caught under my skin
But my cat is the happiest she's ever been*

Six feet apart in a park and we're parked in the shade
On a blanket my mother bought last Boxing Day
You brought a soda, I brought lemonade
And I miss you

Later the sky will turn gold as the sun starts to set
And the words that come out, they turn out to be "I'm glad we met"
Baby if you're Ophelia, then I'm Juliet
Don't go yet

*Cuz the distance is hard but the aching is harder
We're growing up fast and we're growing apart
There's a hundred apologies caught in my skin
And my cat is the happiest she's ever been*

Summertime thunderstorm started when I was asleep
The rain falls on the windowsill drumming me deep
And I lie and I tell myself, "just one more week
Til I break and run"

But sometimes the phone rings and it takes my breath away
I wouldn't mind if you want to call every day
Just sit there for hours not saying a word
Cuz your breath is the best song that I ever heard

*On a warm summer night we can watch the world end
With the ceiling fan on and the walls closing in
There's a hundred love letters caught under my skin
And my cat is the happiest she's ever been*

Maybe when it's over
When the world is new
I'll reach for you darling and you'll
Reach for me
Too
